Truliant wins grant for small biz program

Truliant Federal Credit Union will use a $22,840 grant from the National Credit Union Foundation to support its TruOpportunity Builder Program, according to an announcement.

The Winston-Salem-based Truliant said the grant will help it provide entrepreneurial education, credit counseling and strategic planning for businesses in underserved areas of North Carolina and Virginia.

The program is a continuation of a pilot program funded earlier this year by the same foundation, in which the credit union worked with entrepreneurs with a focus on raising credit scores to improve access to loans, and on establishing formal business plans.
